2021 Department of Art Alumni Reception

THANK YOU

Thank you to everyone who joined us for our 2021 Alumni Reception, a part of the College Art Association's Annual Conference. We were excited to hear from our alumni, spanning from 1980 through this past Spring (2020).

Please keep in touch! The Department of Art and the College of Arts of Sciences would like to stay connected with our hard-working alumni. Please update your contact information here so we can share news and events with you.

Do you have an accomplishment or event you'd like to publicize? Share it with us here.

STEPHANIE ROTHENBERG

NEW DEPARTMENT CHAIR,
PROFESSOR, GRAPHIC DESIGN

Stephanie joined the Department of Art in 2004, focusing in the fields of Graphic Design & Emerging Practices, and took on the role as Chair in the Fall of 2020. She is an interdisciplinary artist drawing from digital culture, science and economics to explore relationships between human designed systems and biological ecosystems. Through participatory performance, installation and networked media, her work investigates the mediation of the physical, analog body through the digital interfaces of commodity culture.

MA IN ART & DESIGN FOR SOCIAL IMPACT

As of this year, our Departmental graduate programs have grown, and through the work of Stephanie Rothenberg and newly appointed faculty member Dina Benbrahim, we are now offering the MA in Art & Design for Social Impact. This program provides opportunities for artists and designers to engage with communities in the city of Buffalo and broader WNY, working collaboratively with team and faculty towards solving complex social issues for positive social change. Students will integrate artistic design skills through the use of the Platform Social Design Lab.

The program seeks individuals from various creative backgrounds, such as the arts, communications, business and marketing, architecture, urban planning, and computer science. The MA in Art & Design for Social Impact prepares participants to advance their professional careers in the field of socially engaged art, design, and innovation, while bolstering a competitive edge for students interested in applying to high-ranking two and three year MFA and MS programs.

COALESCE: CENTER FOR BIOLOGICAL ARTS

Coalesce is a hybrid studio laboratory facility dedicated to enabling hands-on creative engagement with the tools and technologies of the life sciences.

It is a place where artists, designers and architects actively learn, use and create, using life sciences technologies as their medium; scientists explore new forms or broader cultural meanings of their work; and philosophers, writers and social scientists interact in a tangible way with the processes of the life sciences. However, it is a place where such disciplinary labels are challenged and hybrid creative practices are incubated.

Coalesce is a major facet of GEM, establishing a dedicated studio laboratory for biological art and emerging practices in the arts, as well as graduate positions, interdisciplinary coursework, residency opportunities, DIY workshops and exhibitions.

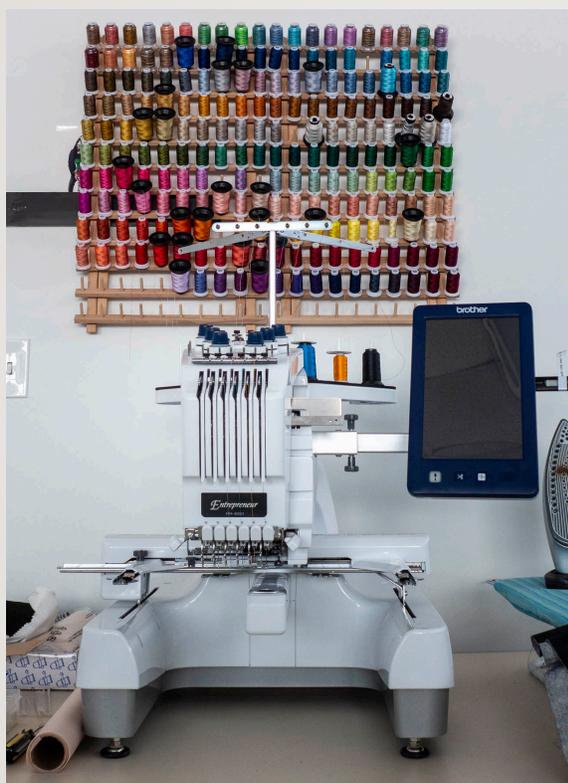

This hybrid facility encourages creative engagement, becoming a place where:

- artists, designers and architects actively learn use and create, using life sciences technologies as their medium;
- scientists explore broader cultural meanings of their work; and
- philosophers, writers and social scientists interact in a tangible way with the processes of the life sciences

VISITING ARTIST AND SCHOLAR

VICTORIA UDONDIAN

DISTINGUISHED VISITING SCHOLAR

We are lucky to have Victoria Udondian currently working in our Department as a visiting faculty member. She joins us through the Distinguished Visiting Scholars program, a program that provides scholars and artists of exceptional accomplishment a unique opportunity to join a cohort of visiting faculty—and the entire UB campus and local community—to promote diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Victoria creates work that questions notions of cultural identity and post-colonial positions in relation to her experiences growing up in Nigeria, a country flooded with cast off from the West. Her work is driven by her interest in textiles and the potential for clothing to shape identity, informed by the histories and tacit meanings embedded in everyday materials. She won the Guggenheim fellowship in 2020 and her works have been exhibited internationally in Lagos, Venice, New York, and the UK. Some of her Artist Residencies include, Instituto Sacatar, Bahia, Brazil; Mass Moca, Massachusetts; Fondazione di Venezia, Venice and Bag Factory Studios, Johannesburg.

MARC BÖHLEN

PROFESSOR, EMERGING PRACTICES IN COMPUTATIONAL MEDIA

Marc Böhlen joined as a Professor in the Department of Art in January 2018, previously serving as Chair and Professor in the Department of Media Study. As an artist-engineer Marc Böhlen / RealTechSupport delivers the kind of support technology really needs. His research focuses on two areas: public computational media and speculative robotics. Public computational media investigates computational media in their capacity to impact public concerns at scale. Speculative robotics considers robotics as a mode of artistic inquiry and makes use of quantitative methods of engineering to produce new qualitative conditions and experiences.

MATT KENYON

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, GRAPHIC DESIGN &
EMERGING PRACTICES

Matt Kenyon joined our Department in September 2018 as a professor focused in Graphic Design and Emerging Practices. He works at the intersection of art and technology, creating pieces that question society's large, complex systems — from our reliance on global corporations and oil, to the military-industrial complex. He is a TED Fellow and recently joined the Lavin Agency, one of the world's largest intellectual talent agency, representing leading thinkers for speaking engagements.. He will have his work OIL. Beauty and Horror in the Petrol Age, shown in the Kunstmuseum Wolfsburg Museum from June – September later this year and Extraction: Art on the Edge of the Abyss at the Gregory Allicar Museum of Art from July - September.

JOHN OPERA

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, PHOTOGRAPHY

---

John Opera joined our department in 2017 and serves as the area head for our Photography program. In his photo-based work, he combines a deep interest in the visual characteristics of natural and scientific phenomena with a rigorous experimental approach to the techniques and apparatuses by which photographs have been defined and produced. Opera often returns to antiquated—but by no means exhausted—photographic tools and processes, including pinhole imaging, and more recently the cyanotype and anthotype.

TED TRIANDOS

CLINICAL ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, ART HISTORY & VISUAL STUDIES

---

Joining the Department in 2018, Ted's work explores the politics of representation in art criticism during the late 20th century. In particular, he is interested in how struggles over the meaning of postmodernism during the late 1970s and early 1980s anticipate the culture wars of the coming decade. His current project examines how some art critics of the 1980s appropriated the tactics of recent conceptual art in their writings to reveal the ideological underpinnings of dominant art discourse.

ALUMNI SHOWCASE

TRISHA BUTSKI

Trisha Butski earned her MFA in 2015 and is an artist and educator living and working in Buffalo, NY. Through drawings rendered in charcoal and ink, Butski's recent work examines issues related to memory by exploring its limitations and aestheticizing the instability inherent in portraiture. By challenging the boundaries between representation and abstraction, and questioning the relationship between fluctuation and constancy, the works become entangled and distorted, mirroring the viewer's innate desire for clarity and their proclivity for drawing meaning out of partiality. The work becomes fragmented through a conceptual procedure that corresponds to the experience of forgetting the semblance of the face, the body, and the subject.

ERIC DRASIN

An MFA alum from Spring 2020, Eric is a research-based artist exploring the relationship between art and systems of value. Through emerging blockchain technologies, his current research explores digital or “distributed” processes, objects, and organizations and that problematize and reprogram fundamental assumptions about how value is constructed and disseminated.

Using experimental media techniques and custom software systems, his performances and installations have explored how media can transform relationship. Sound and video is often projected into the environment creating immersive and interactive experiences. Groups of creative technologists will often perform together, utilizing scores as speculative models of utopian space.

Additionally, Eric has performed nationally using custom interactive audiovisual systems and served as an artist in residence at Squeaky Wheel in the summer of 2020.

PATRICK FORAN

Patrick Foran graduated with his MFA in 2015. His work is concerned with the visual culture of disasters and emergencies represented in news imagery and other highly mediated experiences. His drawings and paintings isolate, fragment, and reframe events within the context of our contemporary catastrophe. Recent projects have considered iterations of “the wall” in political ideology, the computer modeling of human remains, the aesthetic connections between sporting events and political demonstrations, machine vision and false color, and the facelessness of portraiture.

GERALD MEAD

Gerald Mead is a MFA alum, graduating in 2008. He received an Honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree from Niagara University during their 2020 virtual commencement ceremony. He was also invited by SUNY Geneseo to present a 30-year retrospective exhibition of his work in their Kinetic Gallery in the Fall of 2020.

Based in Buffalo, NY Gerald Mead is and has been a long time participant and supporter of the Buffalo arts scene. Over the years he has amassed an amazing collection of artworks with a buffalo connection, like works by Cindy Sherman and Robert Longo along with other buffalo artists just starting out in their careers. His patronage and enthusiasm for up-and-coming Buffalo artists has often put him at the center of Buffalo's dynamic arts scene. Along with these activities he has been a member of several prestigious Buffalo art institution's board of directors, bringing his knowledge and passion, helping to broaden the culture scene of western NY.

JAMES PAPPAS

James Pappas, both a BFA graduate in 1967 and MFA in 1974 has been a part of the UB community for 50 years, teaching and chairing in the Department of Africana and American Studies. # ABOUT COLONIA

DARYA WARNER

Darya is one of our most recent alums, graduating last spring 2020. Her work lies at the intersection of art and science with an emphasis on the interconnectivity of intelligence across species through the prism of Climate Change. She address issues of environmental impact among artists and connect creative processes to earth-conscious practices and has developed a MycoPrinter, an open-source low tech 3D bioprinter that prints with biological tissue (fungi) in the form of living sculpture. As part of the larger long term project, the MycoPrinter bridges the creative process to notions of organic growth and interconnections with non-human actors via addressing site-specific history, ecology, local systems of communication, and possible future in the form of new hybrid space for “intermatter” interaction.

GARY WOLFE

Gary Wolfe is one of our MAH alums in Painting and Art History, completing his degree in 1996. Most recently his work "Out of Darkness: Putting a Face on Homelessness" has been shown at the Regina A. Quick Center for the Arts at St. Bonaventure University, in Allegany, NY and he participated in the Contemporary Portraiture exhibition at the Burchfield Penny Art Center in 2019. As a part of the Contemporary Portraiture exhibition he was interviewed by WKBW's Mike Randall in a piece called "Local artist Gary L/Wolfe's work is showing up everywhere."
