Major research interests:

On the broadest level, I am interested in political transitions, particularly in developing countries, and most notably in Africa. My publications have come in the areas of African politics, human rights and civil-military relations.

My research for the past several years, and continuing into the future, involves the effectiveness of human rights non-governmental organizations. As key parts of civil society, NGOs have become central to the promotion and protection of human rights. I document this in several books, five already published (Human Rights and Development in Africa, 1984; Human Rights in Asia, 1990; Protecting Human Rights in Africa: Strategies and Roles of Non-Governmental Organizations, 1995 (paperback 2001); NGOs and Human Rights: Promise and Performance, 2001; and Economic and Social Rights in Canada and the United States, 2006 (paperback 2009). Currently under preparation is Protecting Human Rights Globally: Strategies and Roles of International NGOs. Three chapters of this book have already been published in Human Rights Quarterly as articles.

Publications:

Books:

(In preparation) Protecting Human Rights Globally: Roles and Strategies of International NGOs (single-authored study that concentrates on the impact of NGOs such as Anti-Slavery, the World Council of Churches, the International Dalit Solidarity Network and the Coalition for an International Criminal Court on major on-going human rights issues, notably contemporary forms of slavery, racism, discrimination based on descent, and impunity from prosecution for major human rights abuses). Selected chapters have already been published in Human Rights Quarterly (see below).

2009 Economic Rights in Canada and the United States, paperback edition of next entry.

2006 Economic Rights in Canada and the United States (Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press) (book of original essays, co-edited with Rhoda Howard-Hassmann, Canada Research Chair in Global Studies and Political Science, Wilfrid Laurier University) (Nominated to the American Political Science Association by the University of Pennsylvania Press as the best book in human rights published that year; named by the US Human Rights Network, a group of 200 NGOs, as "one of three 'notable contributions' in the field of human rights scholarship by our membership" in 2008)

2001 NGOs and Human Rights: Promise and Performance (Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press), pp. 290. (Edited book of 16 chapters, all but one never published before, that compares and contrasts ways in which non-governmental human rights organizations have developed their goals, determined their effectiveness, and adopted and adapted their strategies)

2001 Protecting Human Rights in Africa (paperback edition of following book)

1995 Protecting Human Rights in Africa: Roles and Strategies of Non-Governmental Organizations (Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press), pp. 360. (Selected by Choice, the academic unit of the American Library Association, as one of the outstanding academic books of 1995; short-listed by the African Studies Association for the Herskovits Prize for the best book in African studies; first book-length comparative analysis of the development and impact of grassroots human rights organizations south of the Sahara)

1990 Asian Perspectives on Human Rights (with Virginia Leary) (Boulder: Westview), pp. 320. (Edited volume of original papers presented at conferences organized by the editors.)

1987 No Farewell to Arms? Military Disengagement from Politics in Africa and Latin America (Boulder: Westview), pp. 224. (Comparison of problems of ensuring effective returns to the barracks of armed forces following coups d'état; based on comparative analysis of three West African and three Andean states.)

1984 Human Rights and Development in Africa (with Ronald I. Meltzer) (Albany: State University of New York Press), pp. 352. (Edited book of original essays; selected by Choice, the academic unit of the American Library Association, as one of the outstanding academic books of 1984)

1980 Anatomy of Rebellion (Albany: State University of New York Press), pp. 400. (A detailed examination and comparison of four large-scale peasant uprisings in Africa and Asia, to determine whether they were 'failed revolutions' or large-scale 'rebellions')

1978 Peasants in Africa (with Alan K. Smith) (Waltham: Crossroads Press), pp. 130. (Edited book of original essays; also published as a special issue [Vol. 20, No. 3] of African Studies Review.)

1976 Civilian Control of the Military: Theory and Cases from Developing Countries (Albany: State University of New York Press), pp. 337. (Edited book of original essays, many of them originally presented at a conference organized by the editor)

1974 Military Role and Rule (with Arthur K. Smith) (North Scituate, MA: Duxbury Press), pp. 294. (A general framework of explanation for coups d'état and their consequences, based on detailed study of six countries)

1972 Revolution and Political Change (with Mavis Bunker Taintor) (North Scituate, MA: Duxbury Press), pp. 313. (Edited book)

1970 Soldier and State in Africa: A Comparative Analysis of Military Intervention and Political Change (Evanston: Northwestern University Press), pp. 320. (Edited book of original essays commissioned by the editor.)

1967, 1971 (2nd ed.) Political Modernization: Readings in Comparative Political Change (Belmont, CA: Wadsworth Publishing Co.), pp. 373.

1966 Dream of Unity: Pan-Africanism and Political Unification in West Africa (Ithaca: Cornell University Press), pp. 396. (This is a revised version of my doctoral dissertation that shows, through four case studies, the obstacles to greater unity between African countries with divergent colonial backgrounds.)
