RESEARCH POSITIONS

2021- Research Assistant (2021) and Research Manager (current) for The Minnesota Justice Research Center. Project titles: “Criminal Legal System Policy Reform: A Landscape Analysis of the Greater Twin Cities Area”; and “Reimagining Bail.”

As a Research Assistant, I conducted interviews with criminal justice professionals about criminal justice reform; I then coded and analyzed the data, and first authored a report on the findings. As Research Manager, I designed a large-N qualitative project on community perspectives on cash bail. I am currently supervising a team of 3 Research Assistants and conducting in-depth interviews with community members.

2019-20 Research Assistant for Professor Michelle Phelps. “Mass Probation in the U.S.: Understanding Supervision’s Impact on Wellbeing.” Department of Sociology, University of Minnesota.

I conducted in-depth interviews that combined open and close-ended questions, and coded and analyzed data from 166 interviews using NVivo and Stata.

2016-17 Research Assistant for Professor Joshua Page. Preying on the Poor: How Tough on Crime Became a Revenue Racket. Department of Sociology, University of Minnesota.

I created a database of media covering instances of criminal justice predation across the country, and wrote analytical reports detailing patterns of practice in the data.
